

MAJOR WARNER ANGRY

LIVELY EPISODE DURING FLANDERS DIVORCE TRIAL.

Personalities Indulged in Between Dr. Flanders and the Major Regarding Allegations as to Mrs. Flanders' Chastity.

Dr. Francis L. Flanders, the defendant in the divorce case on trial in the circuit court, was placed on the stand and kept there the entire day. When court adjourned in the evening he left the witness chair as fresh looking as though he had been a spectator instead of being on the rack for six hours.

Mrs. Flanders testified in the earlier part of the day and an attempt was made to prove that while her husband was in the penitentiary she had been unfaithful to him. The pointed questions put to her by her husband's attorneys made her nervous and excited, so excited that she finally broke down and wept.

Then it was the doctor's turn to get excited, and he cried: "You wouldn't say that if you were not in the courtroom." Judge Gates and the deputy sheriff failed to mix up in the general warming up of the atmosphere and when the doctor rapped for order, peace was restored. Mrs. Flanders denied every allegation of her husband, who then took the stand.

He testified that he had first become suspicious of the actions of his adopted son in 1891, but letters were introduced, written by him to his father, which showed that he was in the penitentiary, in which he addressed Christianity as "dear boy" and other familiar terms. The doctor explained by this saying it was simply a common way of starting a letter and was a term anyone might use. An attempt was made to throw some light on the doctor's actions by trying to get a housekeeper through the medium of cross-examination to say that a Chicago paper, but his memory was defective on that point and the inquiry was not persisted in. The rest of the afternoon was spent in having him account for the disposition of his property.

A PECULIAR DEAL.

H. P. and A. A. Clark Say They Gave Their Notes for $200,000, but Did Not Get the Money.

Depositors in the defunct Missouri National bank will be pleased to learn that Receiver Theodore B. Wallace got a judgment yesterday in Judge Scarratt's court for $212,838, with interest at the rate of 8 per cent, against Barry P. and Asa A. Clark. The defendants took so little interest in the suit that they were not even represented by attorneys when it was called and judgment was rendered by default.

This was a suit on two notes against the Clark held by the bank. In their reply the defendants made the bank promise to consider. In other words, they gave the Missouri National bank their notes over $200,000, but neglected the little formality of getting the money on them.

FIVE SUE FOR DAMAGES.

G. W. Palmer Asks $25,000 From the Standard Oil Company for Injuries Received in May.

Five transcripts were filed in the federal court yesterday against corporations for damages for death of employees or personal injuries.

G. W. Palmer sued the Standard Oil Company for $25,000 for injuries received last May.

Sarah E. Baker sued the Barber Asphalt Company for $5,000 for the death of her husband last May.

Dan Hester sued the Dold Packing Company for $2,500 damages for injuries.

Anna Cheatham sued the Haugh-Notte Iron works for $5,000 for the death of her husband who was killed in the accident on the Baltimore.

George and Melissa Legg sued the Santa Fe for $5,000 for the death of their son, Chester, last June.

Miss Emily Vanderbilt Sloane, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Douglas Sloane, and granddaughter of the late W. H. Vanderbilt, and John H. Hammond, son of the late General John H. Hammond.

Miss Sloane, who was introduced to society during the season of 1894-95, is one of the notable belles of New York. She is a tall, dark, attractive girl, and in traits of character, as well as personal appearance, is essentially her grandfather, resembling her aunt, Mrs. W. Seward Webb, during the latter's girlhood days. While she has figured considerably in social gaiety, Miss Sloane has given much of her time to charitable work, particularly in connection with the Children's Hospital.

Mr. Hammond's father was chief of General Sherman's staff and afterward commander in chief of the army. He was in the civil war. Mr. Hammond was graduated from Yale with the class of '92 and afterward attended the Columbia university law school.

The wedding, which will be one of the most brilliant matrimonial events in New York's social history, will probably take place next spring.

PERRY S. HEATH COMING

WILL STRAIGHTEN OUT LOCAL POSTOFFICE SERVICE.

First Assistant Postmaster General With See Why Kansas City Is Not Given Service That Is Satisfactory to Patrons.

First Assistant Postmaster General Perry S. Heath has written Postmaster Scott that he will reach Kansas City on the 8th of next month—the day after the election.

Mr. Heath, an officeholder, is viceroy and will leave there on election day for Kansas City.

General Heath will bring with him the superintendent of the salary and allowance division, for the purpose of going through the Kansas City post office, by way of trying to find out what is the matter with it.

It has been the history of the department that departmental officials have been unable to realize the rapid growth of the Kansas City business. The claim is made in the department that more money is spent here than in cities of like population or business.

They cannot understand how it is that it should cost so much more to handle business here than elsewhere.

The departmental record shows that the business in the Kansas City office has always been poorly handled, important mail, such as letters and circulars from business firms, delayed for hours and remain days in the office before being started to destination.

And all this time enough money has been expended on the office to give a decent and special service to the business interests of the city.

It is possible that among them will be charging John Kennedy with the murder of Emma Schumacher on December 8, 1897.

The investigation of the case was concluded yesterday, but the evidence was not discussed, nor was a ballot for or against indictment taken.

WANTED TO SEE "FOX."

"Fox" Was the "Pal" of a Little Street Urchin Who Shivered on the City Hospital Steps.

"I want to see Fox," was the demand made by a 9-year-old urchin yesterday to the door attendant at the city hospital.

He stood on the porch shivering, for it was intensely cold and he was burdened with a large parcel.

"Who's Fox?" inquired the attendant.

"He's my pal. Can't I just see him for a minute?"

"He's in his eyes as he continued. "He's brought here a week ago. He's got malaria fever and see? he's my pal."

WERE FINED $25 EACH.

Officers Collins and Duer Thought Negroes' Heads Could Be Broken With Impunity.

Sergeant John Duer and Officer Pat Collins were fined $25 each in police court yesterday morning for brutally assaulting a negro named Charles Hardin last Sunday night.

Hardin had been arrested for disorderly conduct and he was discharged. Duer and Collins both gave notice of appeal to the criminal court.

Hardin had eight witnesses in court to prove that he was assaulted without cause or provocation.

Hardin was standing on the sidewalk near the gambling house which the officers had arranged to raid when Duer and Collins both went back to the same place and found Hardin still standing on the sidewalk.

Hardin and eight witnesses testified that Duer and Collins both went back to the same place and found Hardin still standing on the sidewalk.

Unprecedented Weather.

Not flurries of snow, as the good weather prophet declared, but blizzards, wet, disagreeable snow that made you feel you want all the waterproofs you can pile on. Think of it—January blizzards in October—not even the natives can find a record of such weather, the second storm in a week. Better all prepare and buy at once your Mackintoshes, your Rubber Overshoes, Umbrellas, etc.

NOTICE OF SALE

OF REAL PROPERTY FOR DELINQUENT TAXES.

Notice is hereby given that a notice of "Sale of real property for delinquent taxes for the year 1898" was duly given and published as provided by sections 38 and 39 of article 5 of the charter of Kansas City, Missouri, on Tuesday, the 25th day of October, 1898, in The Kansas City Journal, a daily newspaper published in Kansas City, Missouri.

John Scott Harrison, Jr., CITY TREASURER.

The Musical Value of a Piano depends largely on its tone. The STERLING Piano is noted for its long sustained or singing qualities, produced by homogeneous arrangement of the entire instrument and the care given to the smallest details of construction. In the sweetness of tone, the product of years of piano building, the STERLING ranks high. Its beauty, grandeur and volume are well nigh unapproachable.
